

What Do You Need To Know About Animal Rescue?

Did you ever come across an animal on the street and not know how to help it? Unfortunately, this is the usual case in big cities. It is essential to know about animal rescue to ensure that you do the best for the helpless, abandoned, and stranded animals.

Sadly, our streets are full of abandoned animals and the overcrowded animal shelters can't accommodate them all. With a huge number of stray animals on the streets, we often see them in a terrible condition.

It is clear that we should pay heed to them and do our part. If each one of us becomes a part of animal rescue volunteering, the shelters will develop and take care of the helpless animals.

So, how do you rescue street animals?

Gain the animal's confidence

You might wonder, but do not know what a dog/cat has actually been through. Besides, being frightened, an animal may be ill, injured, or suffer a disease that is making it aloof. Therefore, you need to be careful and patient.

Since it may be hungry, the best you can do is offer food, snacks, or anything scented and appetizing.

Put the meal away from you and let it come close (do not rush and be patient). Getting on your knees or sitting helps a lot, as it makes the animal feel less threatened.

Seek a vet and find a temporary home

When you become close enough to the animal, try to put a leash on it. But, if it resists, do not insist, or all the efforts will go into vain! If it is bruised, pick it up with a cloth or blanket to prevent further injury.

You should take it to the veterinarian as soon as possible to know about its health, identify its age, vaccinate, and look for possible fleas and ticks. These are the basic measures for ensuring the well-being of an animal.

Find a family for the animal

Since many people want a pet and many animals are in need of help. So, after making sure that an animal is healthy and ready to be loved by a family, it is time to start searching for someone who gives it love, attention, and care.

Sponsor an abandoned animal

If you cannot adopt or offer a temporary home to an animal, animal shelter volunteering should be considered. You can go to a shelter or NGO like Animal Red Cross, pick one of the furry, and provide it with love, affection, food, and shelter.

To conclude, no matter how good your intention is, it is not always possible to have the animal rescued. In such cases, hand it over to any good and loving caretaker. However, do not hand it over to the first person that you come across. The ideal way is to contact different NGOs that take in abandoned animals and see if they can rescue it.

By following the above-mentioned tips, you will provide a life full of wagging tails and joys to animals, reinforcing the stance of animal rescue in modern-day society.
